HC seeks govt’s response on petition against liquor shop near religious places

Times News Network

New Delhi: On the heels of the recent campaign against the sale of liquor near religious places, the Delhi High Court has sought a response from the Delhi Government!

File by a group of residents of Tughlakabad, the plea said that as per the Delhi Excise Policy and Delhi Excise Rules, 2010, no shop was permitted to be opened within 500 metres of any educational or religious institution.

File by a group of residents of Tughlakabad, the plea said that as per the Delhi Excise Policy and Delhi Excise Rules, 2010, no shop was permitted to be opened within 500 metres of any educational or religious institution.

The petitioners said that the opening of this shop near the temple was the beginning of the end of the traditional trust and faith that people have in temples.

The petitioners said that the opening of this shop near the temple was the beginning of the end of the traditional trust and faith that people have in temples.

The petitioners have requested the High Court to issue a direction to the respondents to close the shop and ensure that no such shop is opened within 500 metres of any religious institution.

Indian B-schools see rise in MBA applications

Pandemic, improved curriculum, and financial considerations have encouraged MBA applicants to join top B-schools of India

T he pandemic has impacted the academic calendar this year. But in this hour of crisis, there’s a silver lining. Compared to 2019, some top business schools saw a significant rise in application numbers in 2020 and 2021. If surveys are to be believed, over 90% of business schools witnessed an increase in applications for MBA programs.

According to a B-schools report, the reasons for this rise are:

1. Better Career Prospects: It is observed that the number of MBA applications each year depends on fluctuations in the economic cycle. It has been observed over the years that when these industries start thriving, the number of MBA applications also increases. This is because when these industries start growing again, there are job opportunities for everyone, and more people use this period to pursue their postgraduate courses. Consequently, when the economy returns to normal, the chances of getting good job prospects and better management courses increase. As economic growth is high, there are more job opportunities for everyone, and students inevitably start preparing for their future. To earn money is easier, and then they look back to do a higher degree.

2. Leaves their job to pursue MBA or any other degree: However, when there is a downturn in the economy, people lose their jobs, and most young professionals leave to pursue other courses. This is why many top business schools witnessed a significant reduction in application numbers in 2020 and 2021. However, now that the economy is returning to normal, the number of MBA applications is also increasing. This is because when the situation normalizes and there are more job opportunities, people with management degrees are job-ready and preferred over others.

3. STUDENTS DROP PLANS OF STUDYING ABROAD: Every year thousands of students apply for admission to foreign universities to pursue master’s or management degrees. However, the pandemic has affected the plans of many students.

   Considering that many foreign universities have adapted online teaching models and that there’s a concern about getting in foreign land, the return on investment in foreign education has come into question. This has resulted in a rise of MBA institutions in India.

   In conclusion, top Indian B-schools see a rise in MBA applications this year.
