MBAs: Boosting entrepreneurship

An MBA program imparts business knowledge, thus training and equipping individuals to start their own ventures soon after their graduation.

It is not so ironic that having an MBA degree from reputed B-school in India promises of getting a high-paying job is a misnomer. From every B-school opening a door to career growth, the two-year programme also makes one conscious of starting a business. Given the rising unemployment and lack of job security, entrepreneurship in the post-pandemic phase becomes an appealing option.

How an MBA helps aspiring entrepreneurs?

MBAs require comprehensive knowledge about various business domains, at least to get into a start-up business with their friends. It is crucial to understand all aspects of business before getting into a start-up. A postgraduate in entrepreneurship also gets the chance to work in start-ups and serve as a mentor to the next generation of startups.

MBAs also understand the importance of business plan preparation. While research and execution are the core components, knowledge about human resources is also crucial.

Networking opportunities

Networking is crucial in business, and it is a start-up that benefits the most from it. MBA institutes provide networking opportunities for students to connect with other students and interact with other students to manage the expected involves decision-making and leadership.

Ambitious MBA students learn how to strategize and make the right decisions in business.

Convergence on So Many Issues, Burying Past Baggage Biggest Outcome of Talks with EU

The government said New Delhi’s agenda at the WTO ministerial includes a permanent solution to the public stockholding issue, recognition of S&DT in fishery subsidies and underscoring the necessity of TRIPS waiver proposal.

Preferable to red thread with the EU

India’s COVID-19 vaccine stockpiling policy, the second biggest vaccine producer in the world, has now become a point of contention between New Delhi and Brussels. The EU has accused the country of hoarding vaccines.

What was the main outcome of our trade talks with the EU?

There was an outcome that went beyond what either side expected. Both sides had an understanding that a lot of issues can be resolved through trade negotiations. What happened between us was a disclosure of issues and problems, which we had been hiding from each other.

What are the key areas that have been discussed?

The talks covered a range of issues, including pharmaceuticals, digital trade, agriculture, and climate change. The EU was also interested in getting a commitment from India on climate change.

What are the implications of these discussions?

The discussions have implications for both sides. For India, it has to deal with the issue of vaccines and the EU’s demand for access to vaccines. For the EU, it has to work on issues related to intellectual property rights.

What was the reaction from the domestic market?

The reaction from the domestic market has been mixed. Some companies have welcomed the talks as they see it as a way to get access to the EU market.
