New warning system to improve flood prediction

Similar Alert For 'Political Storms' Would Help: CM

Vishwa.Mohan@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: The new flood warning system for Mumbai was launched on Friday. Chief minister Uddhav Thackeray called it a "gift to Mumbaiers" from the Centre, adding in a lighter vein that he hoped the state gets a similar system of alert on any "political storm" as well. His remark on "political storm" drew laughter as he jointly launched the integrated flood warning system — called "IFLOWS-Mumbai" — with Union minister Harsh Vardhan via video conference.

Thanking the Union minister for the "flood warning system", Thackeray, whose Shiv Sena was an NDA ally before forming government with

NCP and Congress in the state, said, "Jaise ye system hai, waise aur ek system laga de ki agar koi political storm bhii aa raha hai to wo bhii sachna aap pehle de"

No SSC or HSC result dates yet, do not believe rumours: Board

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Mumbai: Even as social media is abuzz with rumours about HSC and SSC result dates, by Friday, only around 45% of answer sheets evaluated and moderated in Mumbai city had reached the divisional board office. The submission rate in other districts of the division — Thane, Palghar and Raigad — is over 93%.

"We are working on a war footing to complete the work but cannot currently set a date. Until then, students must not believe in rumours," said Shakuntala Kale, chairperson of the board, on Friday.

HSC and SSC results are usually announced by June first week but this year's evaluation has been hit by Covid-19. "Most answer sheets were stuck in schools. However, since May 4, things have begun to move and we have used the postal service to collect papers from the moderators," said Sandeep Sangave, secretary of the board's Mumbai division.

In Mumbai division, there are over 42 lakh answer sheets. Of these, 85% are moderated. The board will hold a drive on June 15 and 16, and request moderators to submit papers.

Travel agents dismiss airlines' claim in SC 'nobody refunds fare'

Manju.V@timesgroup.com

Mumbai: The Supreme Court on Friday told the Centre to firm up its stand on refund of fare to passengers whose flights got cancelled due to the lockdown and the airlines said they would sit with the civil aviation ministry to sort out the issue.

During the hearing of a PIL, senior advocate Harish Salve, representing the airlines, said "nowhere in the world are airlines refunding the complete fare". It raised eyebrows among travel agents as not only are several foreign airlines refunding full fare across the world, but even in India. Indian carriers too have been offering full refund abroad, following directives from the governments concerned.

In India, airlines are offering to keep the money in credit shells for later use. "Globally, due to intervention of governments, most of the large airlines are refunding on a staggered basis. More than 70% refunds are pending, but the important point is the process has begun," said Jay Bhatia, VP, Travel Agents Association of India. "Since airlines, including Indian carriers, are refunding across the world, why not here."

Pradip Lulla, president, Travel Agents Federation of India, said countries like Spain and US have ordered full refund.
